Created: Monday, 08 December 2025 at 16:16 BST Module: 5 - Free AI Agents Purpose:
Demonstrate that agents are skill-based, not domain-locked

The Core Insight

Agents are labelled by their original use case, but their underlying skills transfer to any domain.

Discussion Flow: Real-World Examples

Question 1: DVLA Data Entry

Scenario: A delegate wants team members to input data into the DVLA website.

The Pattern: Skill-Based Thinking

Agent Skills Quick Reference

AGENT	LABEL SAYS	CORE SKILL	CAN BE USED FOR
amazon-agent-1	Trend Researcher	Market analysis	Any industry trends, competitor research amazon-agent-2	Reddit Scout	Community research	Any forum/community insights
amazon-agent-3	Content Creator	Documentation	SOPs, guides, training materials
amazon-agent-4	Growth Hacker	Phase coordination	Any project timeline management amazon-agent-5	TikTok Strategist	Social content	Any platform content strategy
amazon-agent-6	Analytics Reporter	Financial analysis	Any budget/fee/cost analysis amazon-agent-7	Feedback Analyst	Decision framework	Any multi-stakeholder decisions
amazon-agent-8	Support Responder	Communication templates	Any vendor/client correspondence

Key Takeaway

Don't ask: "Which Amazon agent handles this?"

Ask: "What skill do I need?" Then find the agent with that skill.

The "Amazon" label is just where the agent started. The skill is universal.

Workshop Exercise

Present delegates with random scenarios and have them identify:

1. What skill is needed?
2. Which agent has that skill?
3. How would they prompt it?

Example scenarios:

- "I need to compare three software vendors"
- "My team keeps making the same mistakes"
- "I want to understand what customers say on forums"
- "I need to track where our budget is going"
